EDUCATION DAY PROGRAM FOR KIWANIS CLUB

W. R. Pool and Supt. Bradner Were Day's Speakers

BOSWORTH TALKS

Tells of Legislature Accomplishments —Club Votes to Invite Insurance Men Here In June

An interesting educational program was given before the Kiwanis Club at the regular luncheon hour today, after the regular business had been dispensed with. A. D. Campbell was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speakers. Warren Rash drew the attendance prize.

The first business was two letters from J. H. Chesney. The first urged the Kiwanis Club to back the "Buy In Middlesboro" proposition as a club and individuals, to the extent of getting Middlesboro flour, bread and all products possible. The club voted to do this. The next letter concerned the bringing of the state insurance men's convention here in June. The committee is quite favorable to the convention here, which may mean three or four hundred visitors, and Mr. Chesney suggested that the club send the committee an inviation. This the club voted to do, delegating President Blackburn to write the letter.

Resolutions on the death of the father of Dr. T. T. Gibson, a Kiwanian, were read by the secretary. A. H. Humphries, new business manager of the Middlesboro Daily News, was called upon to introduce himself, then the educational program was started.

Supt. J. W. Bradner spoke first, emphasizing the real value of Kiwanis, not as a money maker for its members but as an avenue of service to the community, a place for the exchange of ideas and the rejuvenation of one's own self.

W. R. Pool followed with a brilliant eulogy of the Kiwanis Club, his subject being, "What Kiwanis Means to the Community." This club, he said, had changed the whole social complexion here, had substituted self-forgetfulness for self-consciousness and had shown taught men how they could enjoy themselves. It had been back of every worthwhile educational and moral movement, he said, and stood as a building organization of the past, present and future.

Hon. Joe F. Bosworth, just home from the state legislature, was then called on to speak, the applause and ovations of the club indicating to some degree this section's appreciation of what he had done for it. Judge Bosworth praised the manner in which the mountain people had stood together, regardless of politics, and he declared that every bit of legislation effecting this section which he had sponsored had gone through at the last legislature. He spoke particularly boosting the $75,000,000 bond issue, and urging every one here to get behind it. Taxes will be the same, with or without bond issue, he said. The only difference is the shortening of the time in which roads may be built. He told of several road projects in this section which had been added to the primary system and urged support of Middlesboro in influencing Leslie County to vote a bond issue to apply on the proposed road from Hyden to Beverly. In closing he showed that a fair deal is assured because Major E. S. Helburn of Middlesboro is on the highway commission.

GEO. BRADNER ONLY 3 LETTER MAN AT CINCINNATI U.

George Bradner, son of Supt. J. W. Bradner and a fourth year student at the University of Cincinnati, has recently been awarded a letter in basketball. This makes his third letter in athletics, a distinction enjoyed by no other student of the university. He is now going in for baseball and his chances of winning distinction in this sport are considered favorable.

James Bradner, Jr., also a fourth year student at the institution, recently won the lightweight boxing championship of the university. Both boys are making good records in their class work and are interested in a number of school and social activities.

ROXIE REFUSES TO GIVE NAMES IN OIL DEAL

Said Yesterday 5 Men Made $33,000,000 In Oil Stocks

ANSWER EXCUSED

Senator Resents Implication That One of Five May Have Been Warren Harding

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—Roxie Stinson, Divorced wife of Jess Smith, spent an hour on the witness stand in a Daugherty investigation today. The counsel for Daugherty insisted she tell the names of five men who she said Smith told her they made thirty-three million dollars deahng in oil stocks. The committee ruled names irrelevant and the witness was excused without further reference to it. "My impression is," said Senator Chamberlain, "she was going to say Jess Smith told her one of the five men was the president of the United States." Senator Ashurst there upon shouted, "we are not going to walk in your trap. You would like very much to have us be charged with having besmirched the name of some one now dead."

COMMEND WORK OF LOCAL LEGISLATORS

Woman's Council Thanks Moss And Bosworth for Constructive Work

This office has been forwarded a copy of the following letter, written by officers of the Women's Joint Legislative Council, from Frankfort, to Senator White L. Moss of Pineville and Representative Joe F. Bosworth of Middlesboro:

"The Women's Joint Legislative Council, which is composed of the League of Women Voters, the Parent-Teachers' Association, the Consumers' League, the W. C. T. U., the Home Economics Association, the Girls' Friendly Society, the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the Daughters of Isabella and the Social Hygiene Association, desires to express to you its prompt and grateful acknowledgement of the noble fight which you waged for righteous government in the Kentucky Legislature of 1924.

Your defense of the present law governing our Charitable and Penal Institutions was an outstanding accomplishment. The needs of these institutions make a special appeal to the motherhood of Kentucky, and their proper management is a matter of conscientious concern to all women.

"We are not unmindful of the moral triumph achieved and of your large part in that triumph.

"Congratulating you and the consistency which elected you, and looking forward to seeing you and like associates in the session of 1926, to further guard the causes which we hold just, I remain,

Sincerely and gratefully yours,
JESSIE LEIGH HUTCHINSON,
Chairman.
JULIA R. GUNN,
Extra Secretary.

MUST MEND STREETS AFTER PLUMBING EXCAVATIONS

Complaints have been received by the city officials that plumbers and other persons making water or sewer connections have been cutting places through the pavement and not properly corering such excavations.

Mayor J. H. Keeney says that there is an ordinance requiring that permits for such work must be obtained before it is begun. Persons doing it without permit are subject to arrest and upon conviction, a fine. He declares that all persons thus apprehended will be dealt with to the full extent of the law.

Even when permits are granted for such work, the workman is required to mend them and not merely pour rock or gravel into the excavation as has been done in recent instances.

STATE PARK BILL MEANS PROGRESS

Commission Will Set Aside Large Areas in Kentucky for Parks

By Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Mar. 27.—With the passage by the general assembly of senate bill 306, introduced by Senator Charles B. Truesdell, of Campbell county, creating the Kentucky State Park Commission, the state will, within the next few years, enroll itself among 25 others in the union, that have set aside large areas for recreation and park purposes, for the preservation of wild life and for the creation of bird sanctuaries.

The bill passed the house March 19 by a vote of 64 to 5; in the senate on Friday, March 14, 27 to 2.

The personnel of the commission of three, provided for in the measure, would comprise, it is generally understood, Dr. Willard Rouse Jillson, director of the Kentucky Geological Survey, chairman; Dean Thomas Cooper, of the State Agricultural College; and a third member, to be appointed by the governor (this member preferably to be a member of the National Conference on State Parks.)

One of the first steps of the commission would be its identification with the National Conference on State Parks, which is to meet at Gettysburg, Penn., on May 26, 27, and 28. The state is to be represented at this year's conference by Vance Prather, of Fort Thomas, Ky., who also will represent the governor, by appointment.

Some fifteen or twenty sites in Kentucky are at the disposal of the commission, and some of them are obtainable at much less than their face value. These selections will be announced to the people of the state, through the press, from time to time; but the location of the sites, obviously, is withheld from publication now because the values might be increased by such publicity, it is understood.

TREES TO BE PLANTED AT OUTLYING SCHOOLS

Trees were planted at the four outlying schools yesterday from the supply furnished from the Community Chest fund and others will probably be placed on the high school lot.

So many calls were made at the city hall that the supply was exhausted before noon Tuesday. Most of them were issued to citizens who set them out on the street in front of their property. The trees are three or four years old and will within a few years be an ornament to the town and furnish shade.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27. On the wall of Senator Samuel Moffett Ralston's office, hung when he faces it as he sits at his big desk, is a freak picture.

It shows a great hairy mastodon, of prehistoric times, being beset by a host of uncivil aborigines, armed with spears. It is a battle of many against right with casualties on both sides, for although the beast it frenzied the spears thrust through his hide, he has whirled one of the natives aloft with his trunk and is about to dash him to the ground.

The picture stirs Ralston's imagination.

"It represents to me," he tells his friends, "the eternal conflict between Democrats and Republicans."

In Ralston's interpretation, the great beast is the Republican party. Its human antagonists are the Democrats.

And just as surely as the aborigines brought about the final extinction of the mastadon, Ralston believes, the Democrats will work the ultimate final overthrow of the G O P.

Anyway, it is on this picture that Ralston gazes as he meditates whether to enter the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination this year. He already has substantial backing.

The sweeping defeat of Oscar Underwood by William Gibbs McAdoo in the Georgia Democratic presidential primaries has not dampened the Alabama senator's determination to make the bitterest possible fight for the nomination.

Georgia Underwood's backers explain, is inclined to claim McAdoo as a favorite son, since he was born near Marietta, that state.

To prevent the duplication of the Georgia result in other states, if possible, Underwood's candidacy has been placed in the hands of an active manager, C. C. Carlin, former congressman from Alexandria, Va. Carlin managed A. Mitchell Palmer's fight for the Democratic nomination in 1920.

Oliver P. Newman, former newspaperman and commissioner of the District of Columbia under President Wilson, has assumed command of Underwood's publicity guns. As "Ollie" is not only a crackerjack reporter in his day, but also a major of artillery in the late war, some hot shots from his batteries may be expected.

* * * *

Despite the fact that William Jennings Bryan announced, in Omaha, that he might consent to head the Democratic ticket again, if drafted, he has little chance for the nomination. There might be an investigation—and scandal if he did run.

For—sssh!—speak it in whispers William Jennings Bryan has a financial interest in the Democratic result. Three checks from Bryan's family, one from Bill himself, one from Mrs. Bryan and one from their daughter were recently received at Democratic headquarters. Doubtless they could be produced under subpoena from an investigating committee. The checks were—yes, sir—for exactly $5 each!

REVOKES PAPERS OF EXTRADITION

Governor Will Not Allow Deputies to Be Tried for Murder in Virginia

Notice that he has revoked extradition papers issued for the deputies charged with the killing on the Virginia road a few weeks ago was received in a telegram from Gov. W. J. Fields yesterday afternoon. The message, in full, reads:

"Notify Virginia officials that I have this day revoked warrant issued March 23 on requisition of Governor of Virginia for arrest and extradition of D. C. Sellers, B. S. Saylor, Millard Overton and Lester Bishop."

Chief Ball immediately replied to the telegram as follows: "Please permit me to say that I have nothing whatever to do with the matter; I am not pushing the case nor am I interested in it in any way. Permit me also to suggest that you notify the Virginia officials who asked for the requisition as I prefer not to take any part in the matter whatever."

AL JENINNGS TESTIFIES HAMON SAID THAT HE PAID MILLION TO GET HARDING G. O. P. NOMINATION

Contracts Let Outside This Section At Prices Below Cost Here

That the L. and N. railway contracts for coal during the ensuing year were all let outside of Bell county and this immediate section was the report received here yesterday, according to local coal operators who had bid for contracts.

Most of the contracts were let in the Hazard and Harlan fields, it is understood, at as low a price as $1.65 to $1.75 a ton. This is cheaper than coal can be produced here, operators say.

Local business prophets say that this means dull business here during the next year as Middlesboro's business depends on the coal industry and the mines can not run regularly without contracts. The only salvation, undoubtedly, will be the development of new industries.

CHARTER FOREIGN WAR VETS HERE

Local Organization Would Include Men Who Saw Service In Foreign Land

Charter for a local order of Veterans of Foreign Wars has been applied for and should be received here within the next week or ten days. An organization meeting will be held when the charter comes and other members will be initiated.

The membership will necessarily be restricted, only those who have served in the United States army, navy or marine corps in wars on foreign soil or in foreign seas being elegible for membership. Capt. A. D. DeBusk who is taking the initiative in the organization work says there are about 100 men in Middlesboro and vicinity who are eligible for membership. Ten charter members have been secured.

Though no definite plans for the organization meeting have been made, it will probably take place in the K. of P. hall. Its exact date will depend on the arrival of the charter from Lexington. All men who are eligible for membership are urged to be present.

The F. V. W. has been in existence since 1899. It grew and flourished from membership from the veterans of Mexican, Porto Rican and Philippine wars. When the first soldiers began to return from France during the World War, however, the order began to rapidly expand all over the United States. Now it has posts all over the country.

It is the only organization composed entirely of foreign war veterans. As such it does all in its power to aid the service and ex-service men. The organization believes in the doctrine of Roosevelt—one, flag one country, one language; is tolerant, not political and non-secretarian.

William B. Gould, deputy chief of staff, has been in Middlesboro this week in the interest of the organization. He has formed organizations at Barbourville, London and other places in this section and is in Pineville now to organize a post.

Oklahoma Oil King Was To Have Been Interior Secretary

BRIBED PENROSE

Reformed Robber-Preacher-Politician Tells Startling Story—Penrose's Secretary Indignantly Denies

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—Al Jennings, once famous train robber, now evangelist and politician, was called upon by the oil committee today to make good his promise of a "whale of a story" about the oil deal at the Republican National Convention in 1920.

Jennings told the committee Jake Hamon told him at the Chicago convention that Warren Harding was to be nominated as president and that it cost Hamon a million dollars. Of this sum a quarter of a million went to the late Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania. Jennings said he was told by Hamon, who then was the Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma and who subsequently was killed by Clara Smith, that Hamon said he gave $25,000 to Harry M. Daugherty, and $25,000 to Will Hays.

Hamon is quoted as saying he was to be secretary of the interior and was to share in public lands. Jennings also quoted Hammon as saying that with the money he would make there he would eventually become president of the United States. The Republicans carried Oklahoma for Harding, the witness said, adding that Hamon told him it cost him half a million.

Referring to the promised appointment of secretary of interior, Jennings said Daugherty was at first in favor of Albert Fall for the position but that he had bought them all over though it cost him a lot of money to do it. The conversation took place in a Chicago hotel room, Jennings said.

"He told me Harding would be nominated next day and that it cost him a million dollars," Hamon added. Jennings said $25,000 was given to fourth person, a man from Ohio, "well some one in Ohio," Jennings related. "The money was used indiscrimately with the Oklahoma delegation." Jennings said, and quoted Hamon as saying it "cost him like hell to get the New York delegation."

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—Ighten Taylor, former secretary of the late Senator Penrose, in a statement today, branded as false and preposterous the story told by Al Jennings to the Senate oil committee today. He declared he was in constant attendance upon Penrose while he was ill in Philidelphia before and during the Chicago convention and that Hamon never had seen or communicated with Penrose.

COMMISSIONERS' SPECIAL MEETING

Street Ordinances Pass Second Meeting—Discuss City Licenses

Ordinance providing for the improvement of streets and alleys which passed its first reading Monday morning on its second reading at the special meeting of the mayor and board of commissioners this morning. Some amendments to the specifications for the work were made.

W. J. Callison protested the paving of the alley at the rear of his store and of the small section of Twenty-first street running from Cumberland avenue to the canal. He claimed that the property owners could not afford the expense and that the improvement is not necessary. He was assured that the work could be paid for on the ten year payment plan, that the alley paving would run from Twenty-first to Eighteenth street, thus serving all the business houses it passes.

The matter of fixing the city license for the year was discussed. The list of business and professions thus taxable is now being compiled. Auto license tags for private cars, taxis and will be obtained soon for issue in May.

Judge J. R. Sampson, Ray Moss and Harry Moss went to Pineville yesterday to attend the funeral of the late F. A. Heath.

A Thought

Use hospitality one to another without grudging.—1 Pet. 1:9.

It is not the quantity of meat, but the cheerfulness of the guests that makes the feast.—Clarendon.

SPRING AGAIN

The ancients sought diligently for the Fountain of Youth and moderns are just as persistent in ther pursuit of youth through glands, or serum, or whatever the last faddist may offer. Yet for all ages and all times, the only real Fountain of Youth is the spring of the year.

These first warm days of sunshine, how they call to us! Birds singing, early flowers abloom, grass turning green as we watch it, the fresh breeze stirring. Who is not young again now in body and heart?

"It's as easy now for hearts to be true, as for grass to be green and skies to be blue; it's the natural way of living," the poet said. And when the whole world is so bright and kindly it is indeed difficult to stay outdoors long and keep a grievance.

Undoubtedly that would be a remedy for many of the world's ills, any way. When men used to be more out of doors they were kindlier, less money mad and had more time to think about the right and the wrong of the matter. When they considered nature they could but realize that the whole world belonged to a power far superior to them and that what part of it they gained possession of was but a trust for their period of life. Nowadays, though, with such an abundance of man-made offices and factories and machines, it is difficult for one to feel that whatever he can get his hands on is not his for keeps.

VISION AND PROGRESS

Without vision there is, nor can be, any progress and to those who are mentally active enough to behold pictures of accomplishment are due the respect and recognition of others who sit idly by.

The Asheville Western Carolina Motor Club, incorporated, has in it men who beheld a vision of a passable Eastern Dixie Highway. In this picture they saw two kinds of travelers, those seeking pleasure and those seeking business, coming and going in ever increasing numbers. They realized that the Dixie Highway possessed at least three outstanding points of vantage. First: Its shortness and directness; second: unequalled historic interest; and third: scenic value that is not excelled in any part of the country.

The first of these qualities is of advantage both to tourists and business men and the other two are of especial interest to the tourists and in no wise objectionable to the business men. Here was real value to those living along the route that could be capitalized and made to yield worth-while annual returns through the investment of a comparatively small sum of money.

The big question was how to secure the funds needed. This has been solved by a North Carolina Motor Club, principally through the efforts of Mr. Buckner, its managing director, and Mr. O'Connor, supervising engineer. These men are naturally interested in the advancement of North Calorina, but their interest is far from being altogether selfish because it was realized that Kentucky could also share in the profits made from its possession of the three natural advantages named.

After about six months earnest work, a total of $113,500 has been raised, or subscribed toward the maintenance of stretches of the Eastern Dixie Highway in Knox and Laurel counties. This work will be done largely in anticipation of the tourists returning from Florida late in March and early in April. Seventy-six thousands dollars have been subscribed by private individuals and firms while $37,500 comes from state and county sources. The largest individual contributors so far are $25,000 from Cincinnati; $10,000 from Detroit and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce; $6,000 from Lexington, and other smaller amounts from different sources. Practically all of the gasoline sold between Middlesboro and Richmond during the next twelve months will bear a voluntary tax of 1 cent per gallon. Paris has also entered into this agreement. No doubt other towns will do the same after they are convinced by actual demonstrations that the plan is a success.

The money collected will be deposited in local banks and disbused by local committees as needed for the maintenance and repair work.

Surely Kentuckians should respond to the efforts of men from a neighboring state to make passable a north and south road through Eastern Kentucky, especially when Kentucky has nothing to lose.

The fact that the Eastern Dixie Highway in this state is considered so important a link in the National System is emphasized when money was raised as far away as Detroit. Mr. Buckner in a recent letter expressed his confidence in the undertaking in the following words:

"We have looked with longing eyes for this through highway to Cincinnati, which will carry tens of thousands of cars from the Middle West to and through Western Carolina resorts and Florida. They spend enormous sums of money as they travel, and many fall in love with the territory through which they pass and come back and buy. With sufficient funds collected and placed in banks, we fully believe we can get the road so it will be passable with a fair degree of safety and comfort.—Kentucky Road Builder.

THE PROPOSED NEW CHURCH

Nineteen centuries ago a Man chose twelve disciples of varying creeds and beliefs and through them built a church upon a rock against which the gates of Hell have not prevailed. It is a strange fact that such types of men as the doubting Thomas, the mystic John, the wavering Peter and the steadfast Matthew should have fulfilled the unity of purposes which produced christianity. The death of their Leader, the prosecution of the Christian martyrs, the superstition of the Dark Ages, the internal strife between sect and sect—these have only strengthened the foundation of the church.

Today there has arisen a new controversy which has its roots in the ancient discoveries of science. A new school of theology which really is as old as man has set forth its tenets. This school is divided into parties of the Modernists and the Fundamentalists. The warfare between these two factors bid fair, some say, to wreck the church. A certain number of the latter party has risen who state in clear and concise terms that there is no hope for religion unless the Fundamentalists—those who take all by faith—establish a new church.

The first natural thought which arises is that the Modernists have the same right to make a similar claim. However, to a person who can see both sides, this is a clear case of the pot calling the kettle black and vice-versa. Opinions which can further no end are futile.

The greatness of the Protestant Church is founded on its acceptance of the fact that every individual has a right to believe as his conscience directs. Yet there are people on both sides of the present question who are trying to impose hyde-bound interpretations of life and religion on their fellowmen. The truth that personality is sacred cannot be violated; every man must search his own soul and find there what is religion for him.

Any scheme for establishing a new church is not feasible. To attempt it would bring about a hopless upheaval. Every individual must know God in his own way whether he beholds Him in the passing of the tempest or in the solution of a work-a-day problems. The numerous creeds of mankind, are as leaves in the relation of man to the Unseen Forces.

There is but one church universal, and that church is united upon the words of Him who said:

I am come that ye might have life, and that ye might have it more abundantly.

Mohammedan mosque, Buddhist pagoda and heathen shrine alike must pass under the shadow of the simple cross the symbol of service to mankind. Men will wrangle over dogmas and doctrines in the future as they have in the past, but the spirit of Jesus Christ will reign supreme above their petty quarrels. The church upon which religion depends is not one composed of men who hold certain prescribed beliefs; the religion to which the world is looking is that one which upholds an equal opportunity for all men; a spirit of universal service and a sense of world brotherhood.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

THURSDAY
Entering the Kingdom

Read Mt. 7:13-23. Text: 7:21. Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven.

To a daily life of now is the time. "Salvation means being saved from from a daily life of growing selfishness to a daily life of growing unselfishness and its inevitable enlargement of life. It involves a deepening acquaintance with God, to know whom is eternal life."

Meditation: "Doing the will of the Father"—there is nothing higher in heaven or in earth than to be sharers of the divine will. When one is committed wholeheartedly to the great enterprise of making God's will supreme, he has united his life with the ongoing life of God, which union will continue through the long reaches of the life to come.

Personal Question: Have I the courage of high profession knowing that it means making good or acknowledging hypocrisy?

Prayer: Eternal God, help us to do some service for thee today. Let our daily work bring blessings to others. May we be at one with thee in the deepest places in our lives, that thy purposes may be our ideals. May we begin this day with a close feeling of the infinite and continue with an abiding sense of the eternal, in Christ's name. Amen.

CASTAWAYS
Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

IN business a necessity, at home they're needed, too. Just handy things that work both night and day at catching useless bits and ends that, very often, you and every other person cast away.

Their secrets? No one knows them, yet a wierd and mixed-up tale Their son would be a love and business bill. A mixture of discarded things from scribbled notes to mail that, spread, would make a paper crazy-quilt

"I love you," and "Sincerely yours," "We're mailing you today." Such writings are reduced to shredded scraps. They've borne their little messages, are torn and thrown away and only left a memory, perhaps.

The bank checks of a month ago and many bills, marked paid; the ads that've been peddeled at your door, are crumpled rather recklessly and then at rest are laid—just castaways, not needed any more

And thus a necessary part we take paper baskets play as home and work life travels to and fro. The secrets buried in the scraps that people throw away are secrets only paper baskets know.

"This is great for me!" he shouted at them.

"Well," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man, when the Twins got back to the courthouse in Doofunny Land, "did you find the tin mouse?"

"Yes," said Nick, "he's under a board and won't come out. He says to tell you he isn't there!"

"That shows that his guilt is as plain as the tail on my back," said the patent-leather cat. "I knew it all the time."

"I'm not so sure about that," said the rubber dog, and he whistled indignantly through the top of his head, by drawing in a deep breath and then letting it out until his sides touched.

"Gentlemen! Gentlemen!" cried Mister Fuzz Wuzz, hammering loudly. "This is no place to fight. And since the mouse won't come to court, the court will go to the mouse. Come on ladies and gentlemen."

The napkin rabbit saw them coming and flopped his ears with joy. "This is great for me!" he shouted at them. "I can't move because I and coming untied. But now I'll see everything."

"My goodness gracious!" cried Nancy. "I could have tied you together. I never thought of it. Here I'll give you a good pull and you'll stay together for a long time. There! How's that?"

"Oh, fine, thank you!" cried the napkin rabbit, hopping around and shaking his nubbin of a tail. "That's like old times."

"Say," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz sternly, "is this a trial or a hospital for fixing rabbits? We'd better get down to business. Sit down everybody. Where did you say the tin mouse was?"

"He's hiding under that board," said the napkin bunny. "I've been watching so he couldn't get away."

"Are you there, Mister Mouse?" called Mister Fuzz Wuzz sharply.

"No," came a squeaky voice. "I'm not here at all! But if I was, I wouldn't come out anyway with that old cat there."

The patent-leather cat trembled with rage, but said nothing.

"Then we shall try you where you are," said Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "Now give us your testimony."

"My wh—what?" came the voice. "I never had anything like that in all my life."

"I mean, tell us all you know about the peanut boy's broken nose," said the pipe-cleaner man. "Did you or did you not break it?"

"Never did! Cross my heart!" came the tin mouse's voice promptly.

"Well, it's all the same thing," declared Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "You jumped at the pin-cushion lady, and she fell on the wooden waddle duck and he skidded and frightened the tin soldier's horse, and he stepped on the peanut boy and broke his nose. So it's your fault."

At that the tin mouse came popping out. "Yes, but who scared me?" he squeaked. "I was running from that cat there—and it's all his fault!"

Patent leather puss would have blushed if he hadn't been so black. But he looked guilty and tried to sneak away.

"No sir! Come back here and pay the peanut boy one penny for damages," cried Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "Either that or go to jail for a week."

"I'll pay," said Puss meekly, that he whistled through the top of his head again.

Spring Coming

Like moonlight on white jade
The water slips
Over the conquered ice.
The water drips
From all the edges where
The earth is seen
Ruddy and ready for
A drift of green

There has been too much white.
Up winding slow
Toward Cancer, the high sun
Turns fields of snow
Into a radiance
No eyes can bear,
As if the Holy Grail
Were hidden there.

And then the gray days come
When treetops are Outlined with low sky,
And from afar
A light, wet wind creeps in,
And you're aware
Of something that we call
"Spring in the air."

No one knows what it is.
The children go
Out to the marshes where
The pussy-willows grow.
Perhaps they'll hear some bird
Come early north;
Or see some sleek young snake
Come slipping forth.

The woods are very still,
I can hear nothing
But one striped chipmunk shrill,
Queer chattering
And the low running sound
Where waters go
Over jade-white ice
And tarnished snow.

Want May Day For National Child Health Day

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Mar. 27.—Make May Day, this year, a national children's health day.

That's the ambition of a group of New York society women, who aim to better the health of 25 million children in the United States, including the two million babies born each year.

"May Day belongs so especially to the children," says Mrs. Oren Root, leader of the health crusade, "that it seems the time, above all others, to call attention to the importance of child health. It marks the time when children return to the outdoors, the gayest season of the year."

Five thousand men and women are working under the banner of the Child Health Association.

Surveys are being made in 84 cities representing all sorts of climatic and industrial conditions, to show just how much milk each child gets, how pure it is, what medical supervision and care is given to the children in the schools, and what opportunities for healthful play and hygenic homes are afforded.

They are even going into the matter of what time each child goes to bed at night and what time he arises in the morning!

"We want to make use of all this information to emphasize that child health is the personal concern of every citizen in the United States," Mrs. Root declares.

"We hope that, wherever these May Day celebrations are held people will ask themselves: 'Is the water supply of our community pure?' 'Are vital statistics properly kept?' 'Are our children suffering from malnutrition?' 'Is our milk supply properly inspected?'

MRS. OREN ROOT

"In other words, we want May Day to mean a day for the people of the United States to stop and think of these things, and having thought of these things and having thought—to act.

Mrs. Root calls attention to the fact that physical examinations given 22 million school children, show that five million have defective eyes, a million have defective hearing, a million have active tuberculosis, and a quarter million have organic heart trouble, and three to five million are underfed.

"Showing surely," adds Mrs. Root, "that something should be done."

Fashion Writes "Q. E. D." To The Proposition That Successful Sports Frocks Are Well Printed

That a straight line is the shortest distance between two points was proved by Euclid, in 300 B. C. That the shortest cut to social success for a sports frock in 1923 A. D. is to combine printed and plain materials, especially when the skirt is sand tinted Trembiant, and the blouse, piquantly colored Cinderella, is demonstrated to everyone's satisfaction, by this eminently successful model whose swagger and even slightly boastful air is justified by the admiration it receives on its promenade. Still following in the mathematician's footsteps, we are told by Henri Creange, authority on silk design, that geometrical patterns in vivid colorings are much liked this season. The coloring is in bright shades of orange, blue and rose, with a touch of the black which is never absent, either in design or background, from the fashionable silks. Such a costume as the one sketched is equally at home on the courts, the links, or the beach, for it is as comfortable as it is smart. The low collar, the roomy sleeves, the ample pockets, are all built for speed, as one might say, as well as style. The skirt, of Trembiant, one of the new silk and glos novelty satins sponsored by Cheney, is much in the mode, with its deep inverted pleat allowing for a firm "stance." And by the way, it will be handy to remember that glos is the new name by which artificial silk is to be known in the future.

Husband Plotted Her Death as He Made Love, She Says

MRS. JOSEPHINE LANZIT, VENICE (CALIF.) BEAUTY, AND HER HUSBAND, JOSEPH J. LANZIT (IN INSERT), WHO SHE CHARGES PLOTTED TO KILL HER WHILE HE STILL WAS MAKING LOVE TO HER.

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 27.—Making ardent love to his third wife while he fashioned an infernal machine to blow her to atoms, is the confessed murderous duplicity of Joseph J. Lanzit.

Lanzit, 62, was arrested in the act of planting a dynamite bomb, said by experts to have been powerful enough to raze 50 houses.

He and his intended victim, Mrs. Josephine Lanzit, noted beauty and prominent business woman on Venice, Calif., disagree only as to his motive. He claims it was insane jealousy. She, supported by investigating officers, says it was a monstrous greed.

The two had been temporarily separated, Lanzit carried on his fervent love making over the phone. A Canadian war veteran whom Lanzit sought to use as an accomplice, informed the sheriff.

An Ardent Lover

"All the time he was plotting this diabolical thing," says Mrs. Lanzit, "he was as sweet and affectionate as could be, calling me endearing names and pleading for my renewed faith. "He telephoned many times a day. But his heart was distilling murder under the honeyed words.

"I married him because I was lonely, after short acquaintance. You know how we woman fall for these ardent lovers and their caressing ways. But within a few minutes after marriage I sensed that something was wrong. It was my money he wanted—and that only."

Mrs. Lanzit had $50,000 worth of property. Her mother, also an intended victim, together with her brother, according to the confession authorities attribute to Lanzit, possessed $150,000.

Once a Millionaire

The district attorney, to whom Mrs. Lanzit pictured her husband as "a Bluebeard," immediately began investigating her declaration that Lanzit's second wife died shortly after he took out heavy insurance on her life, and that he had told her the cause of "number Two's" death was not what the records showed. His first wife, he said, he had divorced.

"It was jealousy," stolidly maintains Lanzit, formerly a wealthy and prominent manufacturer of Chicago, once rated a millionaire.

"There was another man. But I've made my bed, and I'll lie in it."

He faces a long prison term, for attempted murder.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

Prohibition—Quizzes—World Flight—Europe

WASHINGTON, Mar. 27.—Prohibition violations have figured, from some angle or other, in every one of the investigations in progress in Washington. Now a movement has been started in the House of Representatives to start "new" investigation to go into the dry law question, to get together all this material that other committees have stumbled on accidentally and to decide finally, if possible, what ought to be done about the Volstead act—whether there's any way of enforcing it or, if changing it is the only way it can be made to work.

Congress' Rights

In the attempt by Martin Littleton, the big New York lawyer, to keep the oil investigators from questioning Harry Sinclair, a plan is seen to stop, for all time, such congressional inquiries as are going on now. Littleton says Congress' business, under the constitution, is to make laws, not to try cases, like a court.

He admits this point never has been raised before, but he thinks it ought to have been, and he believes he can make his objection stick. If he succeeds, he won't prevent court trials of cases like Teapot Dome, but he doesn't mind court trials so much, because court rules would bar a lot of the questions the congressional committees ask.

'Round the World

Army and navy aviators really expect "some," at least, of the four military flyers who have started around the world, to finish the trip on schedule time. It's true that the journey could be made faster by train and boat, but the experts predict, as more flights are made, that the record will be cut down and down and down.

Pretty Ticklish

Naval officers speak of the revolution in Honduras, where United States marines are ashore, as a pretty ticklish affair. Not but what they're confident of the devil dogs' ability to take care of themselves, but with a crowd of local disturbers hot-headed enough to fire on the the American legation and consulate, and even on the marines, they say it's hard to tell what kind of a situation may develop. It might even mean an American occupation for a good while.

Same Old Thing

Trouble has started again in Ireland, just as everybody supposed things were quiet there for good. It began with an army mutiny, and although this was settled after a fashion, by giving the mutineers their own way, there's been an aftermath of guerilla warfare ever since—not mere outlawry but regular battles, with machine guns and many other modern improvements.

China Versus Russia

Soviet Russia wasn't satisfied with her official relations with China. That is, the Chinese weren't giving Russians all the concessions they wanted. So Russia fired up a new set of rules and asked China to sign on the dotted line. China neglected to do so.

The Russian envoy at Peking gave the Chinese government three days to attend to it. It was an ultimatum. China's so much, more like, that it never occurred to [illegible] left. Without hesitating a minute she ordered him out of the country, causing what diplomats call "a strained situation."

KENTUCKY FARM BUREAU CONVENTION THIS WEEK

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Mar. 26. The annual convention of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation March 27 and 28, tomorrow and Friday, will be a "real working conference, rather than a speech-marking convention," the executive council has decided.

All speech making has been eliminated from the program, it was announced today, and instead a number of matters important to the federation will be taken up for consideration. Among these are:

"Do you believe it advisable to increase the dues of the State Farm Bureau?

"Do you believe that all new local marketing associations should be tied up with the county farm bureau so that members of the marketing associations will become members of the county farm bureau?"

Among those scheduled to participate in the round table conferences are Geoffrey Morgan, former secretary of the Kentucky Federation and now manager of the field service department of the Dark Tobacco growers

BANDIT?

Pittsburg (Pa.) detectives saw a suspicious looking "young man" loitering around the Union Depot. They walked over to question "him." A revolver flashed at them. In the scuffle that followed, the "young man's" cap came off, revealing a shock of blond bobbed hair. It was a girl. At headquarters, she said her name was Helen Bateman. But she's refused to answer any questions. She participated in several taxicab holdups, police say.

Roxie Stinson's Latest

Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of the late Jesse Smith, photographed when she was recalled to take the stand befor the Senate committee investigating Atty. Gen. Daugherty and his conduct of the Department of Justice.

Robert S. Brinkerd: vice chairman of the committee on public relations of eastern railroads, and E. P. Taylor of the department of organization of the American Farm Bureau.

Consideration of the appointment of a secretary to succeed Mr. Morgan, who resigned March 1, probably will not be made until after the convention, it was announced, the executive committee explaining that it wished to give consideration to all applicants.

LITERARY DIGEST OFFERS FREE COLLEGE COURSES

Opportunity to win a four years' college course free will be given local high school boys by J. P. Brown, representative of the circulation department of the Literary Digest. He is now discussing the proposition with school officials here who will assist him in choosing the right boys for the work.

A year's membership in a Y. M. C. A. or its cash equivalent, a share in a building and loan association and subscriptions to boys' magazines are also offered as rewards. Hundreds of boys throughout the country are earning college courses in this manner and, at the same time, learning self dependence and industry which will help them in later life.

The Literary Digest guarantees the boy winning the college course a position after graduation from the college. Mr. Brown is the son of the late J. Pope Brown, governor of Georgia in 1910. He will be here all week in the interest of the work.

TO BOADCAST DISCUSSION ON KENTUCKY AGRICULTURE

LEXINGTON, Ky, Mar. 26—sions of Kentucky agriculture are to be broadcast over this and surrounding states by Radio Station WHAS, of the Louisville Courier-Journal on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the regular time of 7:30 to 8:57 P M. The speeches will be from ten to twelve minutes in length and will be put on through the cooperation of The Courier Journal and the Agricultural College of the University of Kentucky.

"The importance of the radio as a new source of distributing information cannot be questioned," said Dean Thomas Cooper in an interview. "We have no accurate count of the number of receiving sations in the state, but we feel that this is a most excellent time to help along the program of agricultural advancement in Kentucky by using the radio. Many farmers throughout the country are listening in on the events of the world every evening, and are hearing news of arts, politics, and science which they have not known before."

The series of lectures during the next three weeks include:

March 28—"Possibilities of Poultry Keeping in Kentucky," by J. Holmes Martin

April 1—"Management of Tobacco Plant Beds," by E. J. Kinney and W. D. Valleau

April 3—"What Kentucky Farmers Should Sow to take the Place of Winter-killed Crops," by E. J. Kenney

April 8—"Sheep Production in Kentucky," by L. J. Horlacher.

April 10—"Kentucky's Greatest Feature Crop," by Ralph Kenney.

"Check Stations"

The United States uses three stations to check upon the wave-lengths of the broadcasting stations. They are the Bureau of Standards at Washington for the east, the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis for the middles ... and Leland Standard University at Palo Alto Calif, for the west.

Who Paid for It?

In an authoritative magazine we read:

"A certain house a few years ago did an annual business of $3,000,000 and the cost of selling the goods amounted to 8 per cent. Good advertising has since then increased their annual business to $15,000,000 and the cost of selling, including advertising expenditures, has fallen to 5 per cent. The salesmen are earning much more money, and the advertising has enabled them to do it, because while their commissions are smaller their sales are made easier and are more than trebled in volume." :: :: ::

Who paid for the advertising?

Not the consumer, for the price of the goods was less than it had been without advertising.

Not the manufacturer, because his total selling cost was 3 per cent less.

Not the salesmen, because they made more money.

Who did pay, then? The same inexhaustible source upon which we draw for the cost of all progress —Old Man Waste.

The most expensive institution we have today is the unsuccessful competitor—the business that drags along for years, eating up rent and salaries, and traveling expenses, trying to get orders that someone else can get and execute better and cheaper.

It is cruel, perhaps, but true that the sooner such concerns disappear the better it is for the public. The advertising of their more aggressive and better-organized competitors brings the end quicker. And it is the money saved by putting a stop to hordes of these petty, wasteful non-successes, which pays for the advertising and cuts down the cost of the goods you buy.

WHO IS SYLVIA?
Who is Sylvia? What is she,
That all the swains commend her?
Holy, fair, and wise is she;
The heavens such grace did lend her,
That she might adored be.
Is she kind, or is she fair?
For beauty lives with kindness.
Love does to her eyes repair
To help him of his blindness—
And, being help'd, inhabits there.
Then to Sylvia let us sing
That Sylvia is excelling;
She excels each mortal thing
Upon the dull earth dwelling;
To her let us garlands bring.
—William Shakespeare.

EXPOSES THREE FINANCIAL FAKES

Politicians Mislead Public Regarding Corporations, Credit, and Railroads, Says F. N. Shepherd.

FALLACIES MET WITH FACTS

Declares People Will Make Short Shrift of Those Who Deceive Them When Aroused to Truth of Own Interests.

Three great misrepresentations, by which certain politicians have advanced their own interests at the expense of public welfare, were recently declared by F. N. Shepherd, Executive Manager, American Bankers Association, in an address at Kansas City, Missouri, to be the oft-repeated statements that "Wall Street" owns the corporations, that the Federal Reserve Banks discriminated against agriculture and deflated the farmers, and that there are seven billion dollars of "water" in railroad capitalization and rates should be reduced accordingly

What Facts Tell

In regard to the alleged ownership of the corporations by "Wall Street," Mr. Shepherd showed that the securities of American corporations are very widely held by the people The Union Pacific, he pointed out, has over 50,000 stockholders and the Pennsylvania Railroad 147,000 stockholders, 67,000 of whom are women, with an average ownership of 47 shares each The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has 200,000 stockholders, 320,000 of whom are employees and the United States Steel Corporation has 174,000 stockholders According to a recent report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, he said, Class I railroads have a total of 777,172 stockholders, there being, therefore practically as many owners of shares as there are employees

"The real capitalists of America," continued Mr Shepherd "are these and the bondholders whose funds are invested in securities through their thirty million savings accounts, and through their ownership of over 71 million life and industrial insurance policies. Once arouse these people to the fact that it is their interests which are being attacked through these misrepresentations and they will make short shrift of those who deceive them

Truth About the Federal Reserve

"As to the Federal Reserve System, instead of its discriminating against the farmer, exactly the opposite is true. During the period of greatest decline in the value of agricultural products, about which there has been so much loose talk, rediscounts with Federal Reserve banks in non-agricultural districts actually decreased by 28 per cent, but in agricultural districts rediscounts were actually increased by 56 per cent. The Federal Reserve Banks of the big cities of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Cleveland poured into other Federal Reserve Banks in agricultural districts literally hundreds of millions of dollars.

"As to the alleged seven billions of 'water' in the railroads, a physical valuation of the railroad properties has been under way for the past ten years, as a result of the La Follette Act, conducted by a body of unprejudiced, non-political experts by whom the valuation has been placed at $18,900,000,000. Although it has been officially stated, and reiterated, that, in arriving at this figure, no consideration whatever was given to capitalization, politically minded men are still deceiving the public, and particularly the farmers, about the 'water' in the railroads. Railroad stock today is not watered. Any possible fair scheme of valuation today proves that our railroads are worth from one to two billion dollars more than their capitalization.

No Railroad Income Guarantee

"Further, demagogues are telling people that the railroad income is guaranteed. The Esch-Cummins Act does not guarantee any return to railroad stockholders, as the demagogues constantly assert. By its terms the Act simply provides a yard stick for rate making, which is that a fair railroad rate is one which would show a return of 5½ per cent upon the actual value of the property used in transportation in a given territory

"This provision bears no relation whatever to railroad capitalization and, moreover, no relation to individual railroads, some of which might show earnings under such a rate making provision in excess of six per cent, and some much less. No consideration whatever is given in the Act or in the administration of the Interstate Commerce Commission to railroad capitalization or any return upon it."

MIDDLEMAN'S PROFITS.

Words of objection on the part of the farmer against the middleman often are in vain, but the farmer who raises on his own acres all that his table requires, the year round places himself in a position where he is largely independent of the middleman. Often the remedy for many objectional conditions lies in our own hands.
